

“These bankers have great integrity. I trust them.”

Trust between a banker and client isn't automatic. It is the end result of a relationship that is cultivated, service-by-service, over a period of time.

It is the way we do business at First Community Bank.

Exactly what does that mean to you?

At First Community, you connect with your own banker who is one of the owners. A banker who lives here, works here, and stays here.

Your banker gets to know you, is accountable to you, and responds promptly to your requests.

If you are ready to start a trusted banking relationship, come see us.
