Shortly after Prohibition was repealed in 1933, Merichka (Mary) Zdravlevich opened a bar on the front porch of her white frame home on Theodore Street in Joliet. She added garlic poorboy sandwiches to the menu, and a Joliet icon was born. Today, the third and fourth-generation Zdravlevich family celebrates the 75th anniversary of Merichka's.

“We believe in hard work, family traditions, local commitment and loyalty,” say brothers Joe and George. “When First Community Bank welcomed us to their local family, we felt right at home. The bankers are good people who are loyal to their clients and our community.”
