When Don and Noreen moved to Joliet from Mason City, Iowa, they hoped to find a bank that offered the friendly, comfortable feel and first-name relationships to which they were accustomed. Their bank president referred them to First Community Bank.

“We were so surprised that this impressive building housed bankers who are warm, personable and extremely helpful. They made us feel right at home, providing a wealth of information about the Joliet area and its many resources. And, like our former bank, FCB has a vested interest in the needs of the community. We like that.”

Whether you are newcomers like the Simmonds or long-time residents, the bankers at First Community are ready to introduce you to banking where people come first.
